Fresher's week: its not all about going out

There is a preconception that university is all about clubbing and drinking, however this is not the case! The first week of term, or fresher's week as it is more commonly known, is a week full of events and activities designed to help new students make friends, familiarise themselves with their new surroundings and have a lot of fun.

The fresher's fair is a great way of finding a society, club or sport that you could be involved with. There is estimated to be over 300 different societies across universities in the UK. At Hartpury, we have societies for sports, hobbies and groups such as LGBT+.

The great thing about going to university is that you are bound to find friends with similar interests and hobbies as you. The fresher's fair, Facebook pages and university webpages are all great ways of finding out about different groups at the university. Remember, all first years are in the same boat, so don't be afraid to branch out in order to make friends.

Studying at Hartpury has been brilliant for me. I've developed my skills, made lots of friends, and I've got great industry connections
